

TIMELY SALE

Instead of waiting till January, as is the usual custom, I have decided to have a general clearance of all high grade RUGS, CARPETS, LINOLEUMS, and MATTING now, so that people needing FLOOR COVERINGS may purchase at less than manufacturers' wholesale prices. After a most successful fall season, I don't want to carry over any of these goods, which will enable me to keep my stock in a clean condition. Included in this is a shipment of rugs that should have been received September 1, but only arrived last week, so that the very latest patterns can be procured, and not in any case SHOPWORN or AUCTION SALE GOODS. Below is a partial list, the cheapest that Floor Coverings have ever been quoted in the District. Goods will be reserved till Christmas upon the payment of a deposit, as they will make useful gifts.

THREE AMERICANS MADE CARDINALS

to the church, would react against her enemy. The evils of modernism and naturalism were counterbalanced everywhere, the Pope continued, by the love of the holy eucharist, as was proved by the congresses held in Cologne, London, Montreal, and Madrid.

Spain had especially, he said, demonstrated her true religious sentiment. He ended with expressing the hope that God would preserve the church from the evils threatening her peace and happiness.

Names of New Cardinals Read.
Cardinal Vannutelli, seated at the right hand of the Pontiff, read the names of the eighteen cardinals to be created. Plus X then asked, following the ancient form:

"How was this to you?" Cardinal Vannutelli replied: "Placet"—it pleases—and then the other cardinals, in the order of their seniority, filed slowly past the throne, making an obeisance and repeating the word "placet." This is one of the few devotional consistories. It was recalled by many present, where there was not a dissenting voice among the cardinals.

The Pope then proclaimed the names of the new princes of the church, and

CARDINALS CONFIRMED YESTERDAY.

Diomed Falconio, Apostolic Delegate.
John M. Farley, Archbishop of New York.
William H. O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston.
Francis Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, England.

making the sign of the cross, brought the secret consistory to a close.
The doors were then thrown open and the Pope, borne by the Swiss Guards, returned to his apartments.

Are Promptly Notified.

As soon as these ceremonies had been concluded, Mgr. D'Amico, Mgr. Canali, private secretary to Merry del Val, Mgr. Riser, secretary to the apostolic committee, visited the waiting cardinals at their several places of abode and informed them of their elevation. In the case of the American cardinals this announcement was made at the North American College. The notification came in the shape of a letter from the Pope informing each of his elevation and instructing him to attend the throne room of the Vatican on Wednesday to receive his red beretta preparatory to the public consistory, which will be held on Thursday in the Hall of Beatifications.

Response by Falconio.

Cardinal Falconio responded to the address of the master of ceremonies for himself and on behalf of Cardinals Farley and O'Connell. He said: "I rejoice that it falls upon me as dean to offer our sincerest thanks and most profound gratitude to his holiness for graciously designing to raise us, despite our unworthiness, to sublime dignity. While by this solemn act the Pontiff confers the highest honor upon us in our personal capacity, he also honors the noble, young and powerful nation which is proud of its free institutions."

"He honors likewise a very great honor on the faithful Catholic of that nation who are truly great and worthy of him."

high reputation, and whose steady progress under the aegis of sane Christian liberty wins the admiration of all.

"This unique honor which came to us less by reason of our personal merits than because of the exalted opinion which the noble mind of the pontiff entertains of the flourishing conditions of the Catholic religion in the United States."

Congratulations from many distinguished visitors followed, and these visits, known as "visite di colon affection," will be resumed for two hours to-morrow morning.

Scene a Brilliant One.

The scene at the American College almost rivaled that at the Vatican. The weather was beautiful, and all morning long carriages and automobiles were arriving and departing from the Vatican with the guests and spectators. At the American College there was a constant stream of callers after the consistory had been held. Every cardinal sent his gentleman in waiting and secretary with congratulations to the Americans.

With these came the heads of the religious orders, prelates, accompanied by their suites in variegated costumes, together with hundreds of students of the college, in their black cassocks with red sashes, blue buttons and white collars, making a brilliant ensemble.

Among the archbishops and bishops confirmed in their offices to-day were the following Americans: James J. Keane, Archbishop of Dubuque; Edmund F.

Prendergast, Archbishop of Philadelphia; Joseph Kondelka, Auxiliary Bishop of Milwaukee; John M. Laval, Auxiliary Bishop of New Orleans; Joseph Schrems, Bishop of Toledo, Ohio; Peter J. McDonough, Bishop of Rockford, Ill.; John Farrelly, Bishop of Cleveland; Edmund M. Dunne, Bishop of Peoria; George W. Mundele, Auxiliary Bishop of Brooklyn; James O'Reilly, Bishop of Fargo, N. Dak.; Joseph J. Rice, Bishop of Burlington, Vt.; John G. Lawler, Auxiliary Bishop of St. Paul, Minn.; John W. Shaw, Coadjutor Bishop of St. Antonio, Tex.; Des O'Donoghue, Bishop of Louisville, Ky.; John J. Nolan, Bishop of Hartford; Thomas E. Lillis, Coadjutor Bishop of Kansas City; Vincent White, Bishop of Bismarck, N. Dak.; Timothy Corbett, Bishop of Crookston, Minn.; Joseph F. Busch, Bishop of Lead, S. Dak.; Joseph Chisholm, Coadjutor Bishop of Indianapolis; John Ward, Bishop of Leavenworth; Edward P. Kelly, Auxiliary Bishop of Detroit; and J. H. Thien, Bishop of Lincoln, Neb.

MR. PLUYM DENIES STORIES.

Washington Tailor Declares Facts About Swindle Are Distorted.

Editor The Washington Herald: I want you to kindly extend me the privilege of denying through your paper an untrue article printed in a Sunday afternoon newspaper. Over two years ago I allowed a friend to persuade me to let him invest some money in a deal in Baltimore City, which later proved to be a clever swindle.

Recognizing the extreme cleverness of the whole scheme and knowing the operators were aided by officials in some of the highest positions in the city of Baltimore and the State of Maryland, I determined to brave this embarrassing situation and to expose these dealings that others might profit by my experience. I had the satisfaction of having several of the principals arrested, among others the chief detectives of Baltimore, which proves the situation to be unusual, and that I was at least not as stupid as some of the papers which printed the article so distorted that not one of the real facts remained.

As far as I am personally concerned, the matter ended there, but every now and then a paper will dig up this affair with additional embellishments. Last Thursday I went to New York for the sole purpose of attending the Horse Show, and not, as stated, "to identify one of the gang."

DISTRICT D. A. R. HEAR MRS. SCOTT

President General Speaks at Patriotic Meeting.

Patriotic education was the theme which occupied the minds of a large gathering of the District Daughters of the American Revolution at the New Willard last night. Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, the State regent, explained that it was the custom of the Daughters to hold such a meeting each year for the purpose of arousing enthusiasm. She reviewed the patriotic work accomplished during the past year.

Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president general of the society, in her address, compared the patriotism of American women with that of the colonial dames who aided in the great struggle for patriotism. Mrs. Scott said she was proud of the great number of D. A. R. members who devoted their time to the matter of patriotic education. Mrs. Scott also spoke of the great increase in chapters in the D. A. R., and especially in the District during the last few years.

A great deal of interest was expressed in the paper read by Miss Amariis Gillett, librarian general of the D. A. R., on a memorial highway from Washington to Mount Vernon. It is proposed, according to Miss Gillett, to erect monuments along this highway, and to set up a number of historic relics.

Mrs. Lockwood asked the meeting to endorse this project, which was done by a rising vote.

WOULD PUT PLATO IN "GREATEST MEN"

Brown Takes Issue with Carnegie on List.

New York, Nov. 27.—While he does not take issue with Mr. Carnegie, Chancellor Brown, of New York University, thinks the list of "most important men" could be made more complete by adding to it Plato, Sir Isaac Newton, and Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the electric telegraph. He noted also that Mr. Carnegie did not name any of the great generals or religious leaders.

"I would not venture to offer a list in competition with Mr. Carnegie's list," he said; "but one cannot help raising a question as regards some names that do not appear in that list."

"What about Plato, for example? We heard some years ago of the 'passing of Plato.' I have strong suspicion that he has moved the world somewhat, both before and since that passing. His idealistic philosophy, if it has done nothing more than to compel a good many thinkers to say, with considerable clearness, why they do not believe in it, has been of appreciable influence."

"What about Sir Isaac Newton? I should imagine that he has had considerable influence upon the scientific development which has produced the inventions and inventions of the past century."

"Just one more question occurs to me at this moment. What about Morse, the inventor of the electric telegraph? The primacy of his invention has not been disputed to any greater extent than that of any other inventor."

"By the way," he said, "do you know what an interesting character Morse was? A man who, in his time, was eminent in both science and art. I do not remember any instance in history in which a man worked as an artist to support himself while he was carrying through an invention in the field of applied science."

"I suppose Mr. Carnegie's list purposely omits the great religious leaders of the world, so as to keep out of a field of controversy. It is certainly in keeping with the character of an apostle of peace that he should have omitted the world's greatest generals, and I shall not quarrel with him with reference to this omission."

"I always find a list of this kind immensely interesting, because of what it tells other men thinking about. This one attracts attention as an example of what so interesting a man as Mr. Carnegie has thought."

Future Lawyers Elect Officers.

The freshman class of the Washington College of Law held its first class election last night. Edwin C. Reed, temporary chairman, presided. W. S. Hamers was elected president; Mrs. Ivy Kellerman Reed, vice president; Miss Mary D. Truder, secretary; Thomas J. Hanlon, treasurer, and as members of executive committee, Edwin C. Reed, Norman Sims, and Harry Giovannoli.

Wife of Professor Dead.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 27.—Mrs. Cornet, aged about twenty, wife of Prof. D. L. Cornet, of Shenandoah Collegiate Institution, of Dayton, died to-day of blood poison. She was Miss Parker Sloan, daughter of Frank Sloan, of Tuscaloosa, Ala. She was ill only five days. Last year she was a student at Shenandoah Collegiate Institution, and her secret marriage to Prof. Cornet before commencement in June was a romance that attracted wide attention.
